

With the United Nations Climate Change Conference taking place this month, and President Obama speaking out on the importance of taking climate change seriously, the subject of the environment and how we protect it is moving up the media agenda.

Based in Bristol, European Green Capital 2015, Policy Press is a non-profit social science publisher committed to publishing environment-focused titles that help make a difference. From global concerns to local issues, our environment list includes titles by established and new authors, from monographs to textbooks.

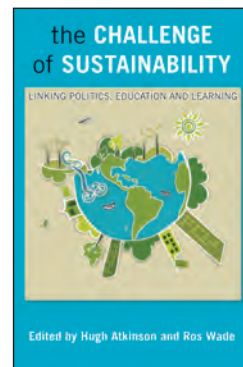

If you would like to receive regular announcements of new titles and information on how to publish with us, sign-up to our environment mailing list at: www.policypress.co.uk/browse_environment.asp
